HISTORIC LANCASTER (AND THE LUNE ESTUARY)

This relaxed walking route takes in the highlights of Lancaster's historic city centre before heading out along the canal to the River Lune estuary and meandering back into town across the freshwater and salt marshes.

At a glance

How far? 8.5km / 5.3 miles

How long? 2 hours

How hard? Relaxed: Occasionally uneven paths with a few stiles.

Dog-friendly? Keep dogs under close control and ideally on a lead.

Start/finish: Lancaster Railway Station

Toilets: St Nicholas' Arcade, Marketgate or the Bus Station – plus various city centre pubs and cafés.

Refreshments: A wide choice of cafés and pubs in the city centre – we'd recommend Atkinson's in China Street or the Sun Hotel on Church Street.

Points Of Interest:

The city section of this route visits many of Lancaster's highlights, so do leave extra time to visit some or all of the following: Old Town Hall, now City Museum in Dalton Square, St Peter's Cathedral, the mediaeval Priory Church next to the castle and – of course – the imposing edifice of the castle itself.

TURN OVER FOR STEP
BY STEP ROUTE MAP

1. Start: From main station entrance head left then left again across railway bridge then right onto city loop heading past football ground to the Millennium Bridge. After 250m head right under bridge then immediately left and continue along multi-user path below the church and through woodland.

2. 1.0km: Turn right and climb steeply up steps to Priory Church then descend past the Judges' Lodgings to Bridge St and left down Church St. At junction, turn right into pedestrianised zone then left through Frances Passage and diagonally right across Dalton Sq to the town hall and through the adjacent gardens then left over the canal bridge and sharp right down cobbles onto the towpath.

3. 1.9km: Continue along the towpath for 400m then head left across stone bridge and continue Southwest along far towpath for another 700m, taking driveway on right at gatehouse.

4. 3.7km: Continue past houses then descend into the village of Aldcliffe and right down the lane at junction and follow lane between the pastures to the coast path. Turn right then through gate up onto the embankment (not along lane) and continue North - admiring the views of the Lakeland fells across Morecambe Bay.

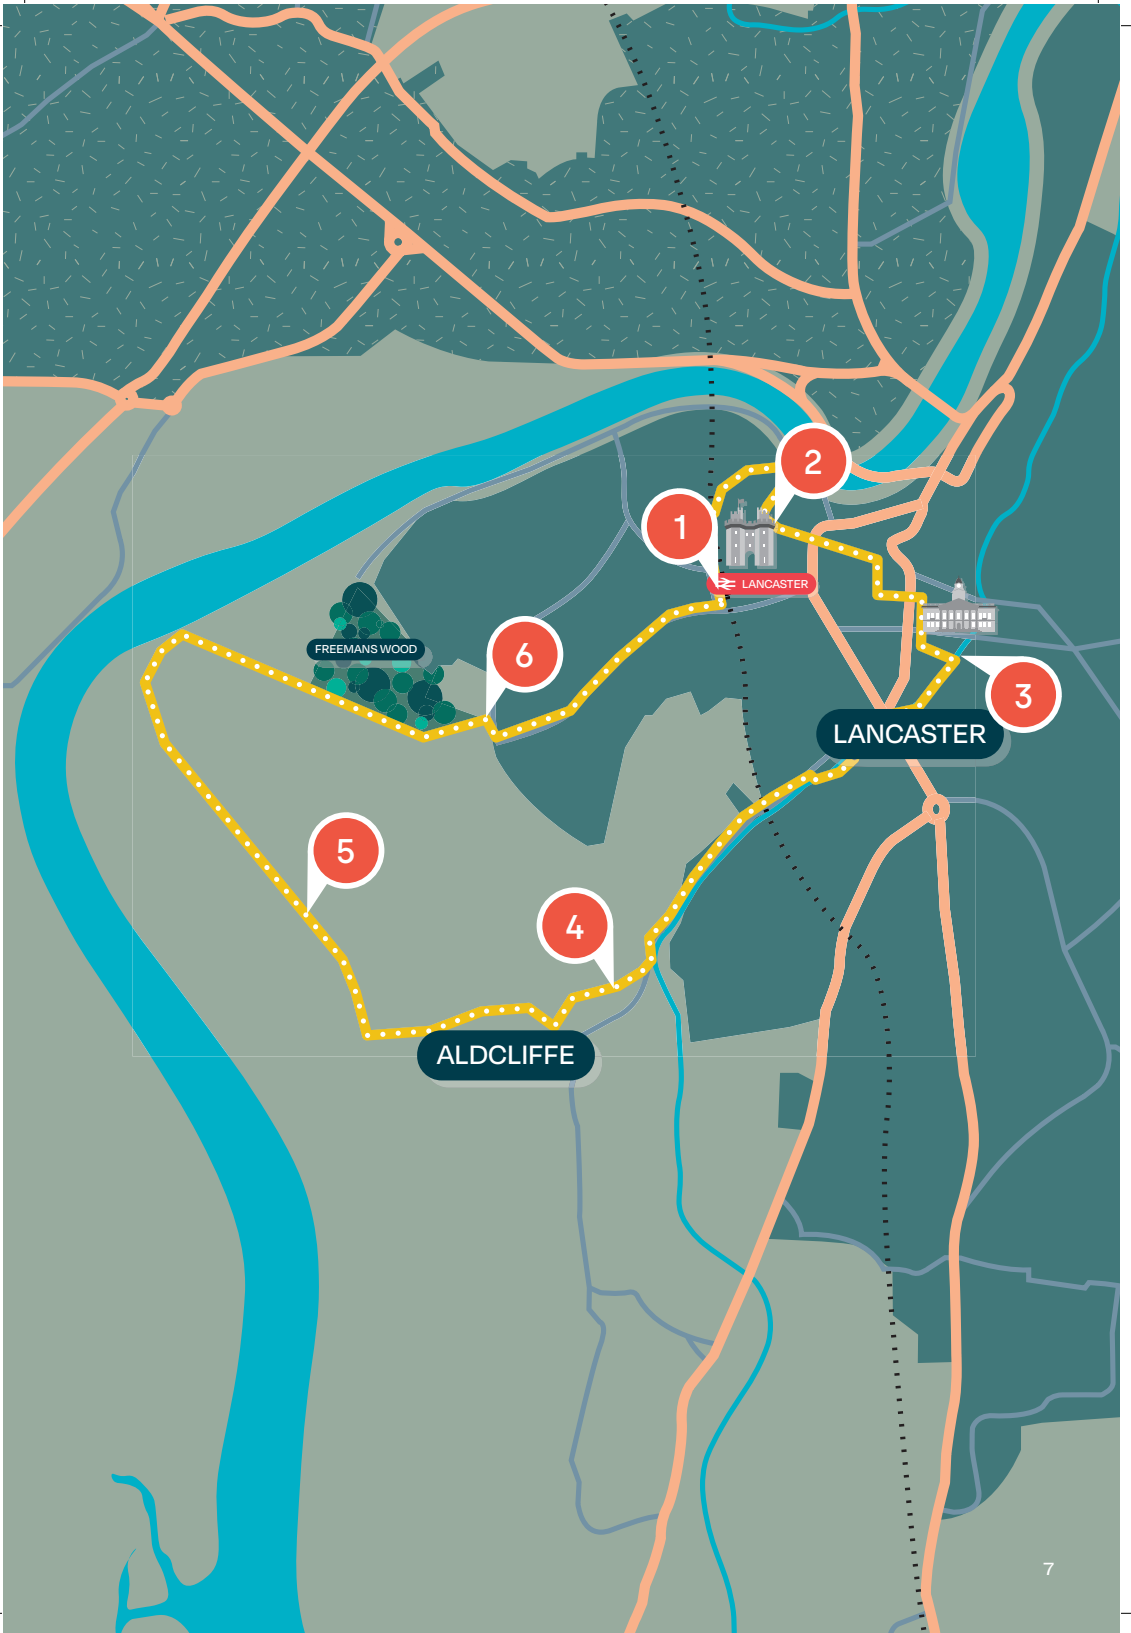

5. 4.3km: Continue North along Lancashire Coastal Way beside salt marsh for a mile, then after the stile, head right through kissing gate and onto track heading through Freeman's Wood. Continue past the lagoons and straight over intersection to the suburban edge of the city.

6. 7.2km: At playing field, head right onto Willow Lane, then left up Westbourne Road, passing Westbourne House and continuing downhill into the city centre then left after the railway bridge to arrive back at the station.

CROOK
CIRCULAR
WALK

A riverside wander along the Lune from Caton to Aughton, before climbing to admire the stunning views across the valley and returning across verdant pastureland

At a glance

How far? 12km / 7.5 miles (9.5km / 5.9 miles)

How long? 3 hours 30 mins (2hrs 45mins)

How hard? Moderate: Occasionally uneven paths with several stiles.

Dog-friendly? Keep dogs under close control and ideally on a lead.

Start/finish: Caton Picnic Site Car Park. SD 521647

Toilets: At Start point

Refreshments: Caton Village

Points Of Interest:

The 'Crook' of Lune is a large meander in the river between the villages of Halton and Caton – spanned by two viaducts which once carried railway lines but are now pedestrian footways. J M W Turner painted the wonderful view up the valley towards Ingleborough from the East Viaduct, while William Wordsworth noted the vistas in his 'Guide to the Lakes'. Aughton Woods on the northern bank of the river is one of the finest examples of ancient oak woodland anywhere in Lancashire.

TURN OVER FOR STEP
BY STEP ROUTE MAP

1. Start: Leave car park on footpath to right of toilets and descend sharp right down steps and through kissing gate to join riverside path heading northeast. Follow the river upstream for half a mile to kissing gate beside weir. Continue through gate into woods.

2. 1.0km: The next section of path is quite uneven and eroded in places. Stick to the riverside and take care. Emerge through kissing gate into meadows and continue half left, crossing a footbridge and rejoining the river after 300m.

3. 1.4km: Continue upstream past pipeline bridge and over another footbridge into Aughton Woods – one of the finest examples of ancient oak woodland in the county. Again, this section through the woods can be slippery and uneven – especially after heavy rain. Take care on the wooden walkways.

4. 2.5km: At the edge of the woods where the river meanders sharply round to the right in a tight hairpin, follow the riverbank through the fields as it doubles back over the footbridge then continue through the riverside meadows for just over a mile to the barn.

5. 4.5km: From here, follow the path over stile beside gate and onto grassy path heading half right across meadows towards a ladder stile beside low hut, then follow riverbank back towards woods.

Alternative Route While there is no established right of way here, it is possible to continue straight across this meander to cut the walk distance by 1.5 miles. Simply continue straight ahead, skirting the edge of the woods, then follow the hedge line to rejoin the riverside path after around half a mile.

6. 5.2km: Continue upstream for quarter of a mile to join footpath beside track to Aughton Barns. Continue on track past barns to farmhouse and, ignoring footpath off to right, continue half left on track between house and barn to join country lane.

7. 6.2km: Climb steeply for 400m, continuing straight over crossroads and past the houses to take footpath over metal stile on left. Cross two stiles and head half right over the field to stile in top corner of field above the woods.

8. 7.1km: Cross stile and head half right towards farm buildings, crossing two stiles and continuing diagonally past transmitter to corner of paddock and following hedgeline along right hand side of field and over another stile, continuing along the hedgeline towards the next farmhouse.

9. 8.1km: In corner of field, cross stile and head past sheds and through metal gate onto track between barns. Head left then right over squeeze stile and over cobbles into lane.

10. 8.2km: Turn left then right over stile and follow wall along right hand edge of field and through gate, continuing along right boundary of wall. Views open out to the south across the valley to the Bowland fells and west to Lancaster and the sea beyond.

11. 8.6km: Cross the ladder stile at the next field boundary and quickly through a gate and across the corner of the field to follow the hedgeline to another large farm. Skirt the boundary of the farm then right through gate and down track through yard and half left through two metal gates back into fields.

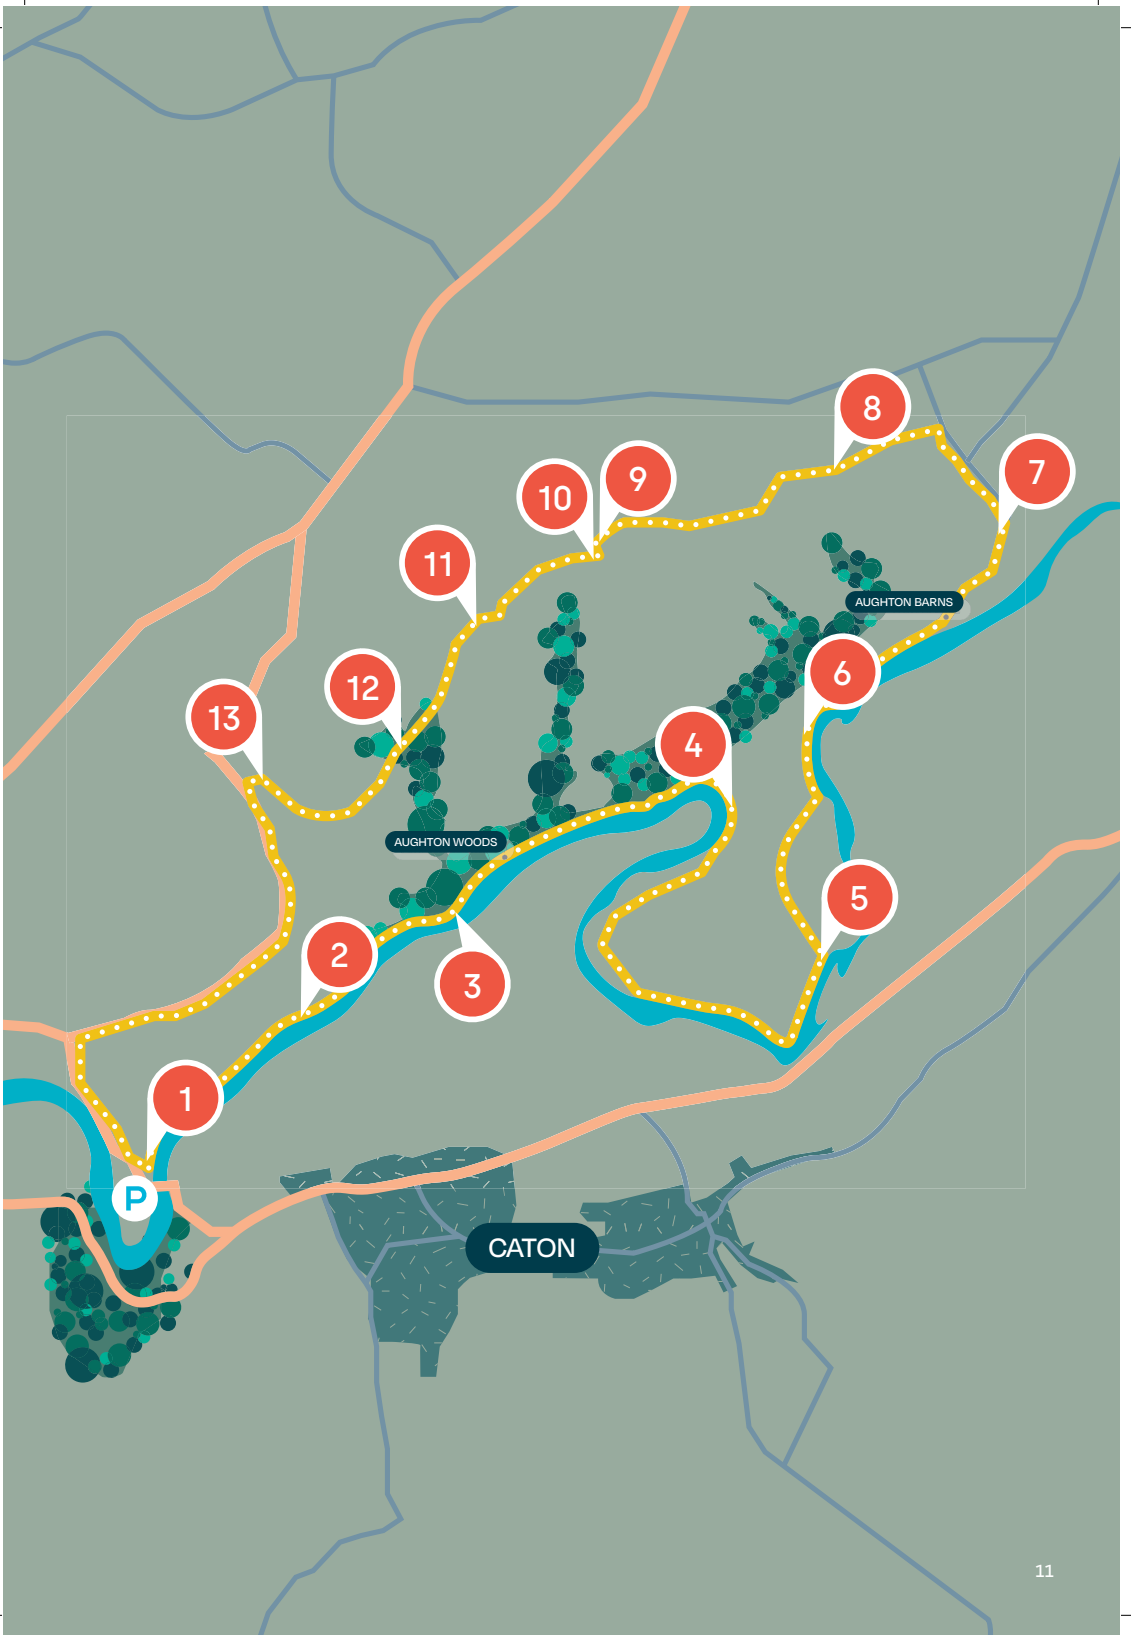

12. 9.0 km: Follow rough track through another gate and continue to kissing gate on edge of woods. Continue through kissing gate, staying above the line of trees to follow hedgeline then, above the hamlet of Halton Park, go through squeeze stile and continue along other side of hedgeline. Follow marker posts around edge of farm then through gate beside garage and right onto track.

13. 9.7km: Continue past houses and through wood to lane. Turn left and follow lane over cattle grid and into parkland for half a mile. Just before the next cattle grid, turn left onto bridleway beside road and follow this back to car park.

AND COCKERSAND
ABBEY RIDE

This largely traffic-free 25k ride heads along the city's quayside then follows the old trackbed of the Glasson railway south along the estuary to Glasson Dock with an optional extension to the ruins of Cockersand Abbey.

At a glance

How far? 25km / 15.5 miles

How long? 2 hours

How hard? Easy: Flat, traffic-free cycleways and short stretches on quiet country lanes.

Refreshments: Lancaster City Centre and The Quayside At Glasson Dock, Tithebarn Hill, Glasson Dock, LA2 0BY

Public toilets: Glasson Dock car park

Start/finish: St George's Quayside

Points Of Interest:

This route heads out past the Georgian warehouses of St George's Quay and fetches up in the quirky little port of Glasson Dock, before continuing to the C12 ruin of Cockersand Abbey, overlooking the Victorian Plover Scar Lighthouse marking the mouth of the Lune to shipping.

TURN OVER FOR STEP
BY STEP ROUTE MAP

1. Start: Follow Quay Road under railway bridge and past residential estate into industrial estate. At cul-de-sac, take bridleway straight on through the woods, passing Freeman's Pools and continuing over the freshwater marshes.

2. 2.7km: At end of New Quay Road, where it meets the road inland, bear left then back right to follow the Millennium Track between tall hedges, signposted Conder Green and Glasson. Continue along track for 5km to the car park and picnic site at Conder Green.

3. 7.5km: Continue over the bridge on the cycleway to Glasson as the views open up to the north, where the Lakeland fells brood on the horizon. In Glasson, you'll find cafes and a pub and the Port of Lancaster Smokehouse is also worth a visit if you can carry some smoked products in panniers or rucksack.

From Glasson, the extension to Plover Scar and Cockersand is a rewarding walk/ride. The more scenic coastal route becomes a footpath and is unrideable for the last 500m to the abbey, but take the road route and you can get within just a couple of hundred metres of the Abbey.

Caution: After heavy rain or during spring tides, Janson Pool can flood across Marsh Lane making access to the coast tricky, so it's advisable to follow the road route in both directions. In good weather however, it's well worth pushing your bike along the footpath to get the ocean views on the return trip as described below.

4. 8.7km: Road Route: From the mini roundabout near Glasson Marina, head right over the canal bridge and follow the quiet country lanes south to Moss Lane and then turn right to head towards the coast.

Cockersand Abbey is next to a large barn right on the coast. Continue along the road as it zig-zags right and left across the farmland, heading towards the large farm buildings near the coastline. Where the road heads left near the big barns, dismount and head straight up the farm track and past the barns, where you'll find the abbey right beside the coast.

5. 12.3km: A few hundred yards northwest lies Plover Scar Lighthouse, marking the entrance to the Lune estuary for shipping. Retrace your route to return to Glasson or push your bike north along the coastal path to Abbey Lighthouse cottage, where you can remount.

6. 12.9km: From the cottage, continue north for another 600m to Crook Farm, then turn right along Marsh Lane track, past the caravan park and to the road. At road, turn left to return to Glasson, then follow the Millennium Track along the estuary back to Lancaster.

9. 8.1km: At road, turn right past cottage onto tarmac path past allotments and playground to railway. Turn left and follow signs to Westbourne Road on footpath running alongside railway. After entrance to car park, turn right over the railway bridge then cross road and head towards city centre, turning left up Castle Park back to your starting point.
